

muss's journal

The latest news, last week, a girl named Zulmira was walking on the beach, on her way home, when she stepped on a large box. She ran home to pick a spade and brush. After that, she went back and dug in the sand. That was when she found coins, jewels, gold and silver. She picked up the box and went home. She gave it to her mother. That resulted in an auction to sell the treasure. To conclude, Zulmira's family turned very rich and gave 20% of the money to a child institution.

Good story with some excellent linking words and a good range of vocabulary.
