

Fugu (Japan) Fugu is the famous Japanese puffer fish, filled with enough of the poison tetrodotoxin to be lethal. Chefs have to be trained for two to three years before they can prepare the fish. Fugu actually tastes quite bland; the excitement is in surviving the experience of eating it.