

Food in different countries

Look at the pictures and decide which family is described in these captions. Put a number by the description.

	The Bainton family from Wiltshire in the UK, who spend around £160 on their weekly food
	The Matsuda family from Yomitan, Japan, who spend £143 a week on groceries
	The Batsuuri family in Ulan Bator, Mongolia, with a week's food that costs £29
	The Dudo family in Sarajevo, Bosnia. Their weekly shopping costs £107
	The Namgay family from Shingkhey, Bhutan, with a week's worth of food that costs them around £3.20
	The Patkar family from Madhya Pradesh in India with a week's worth of food, costing £25
	The Revis family from Raleigh in North Carolina. Their weekly shopping costs £219
	The Natomo family from Kouakourou, Mali, who spend £16 a week on food
	The Aymo family of Tingo, Ecuador, with a week's food that costs £19
	The Melander family from Bargteheide, Germany, who spend around £320 on a week's worth of food
	The Aboubakar family from Darfur, Sudan, in the Breidjing refugee camp in Chad. Their weekly food, which feeds six people, costs 79p
	The Madsen family from Kap Hope village in Greenland with their weekly groceries that cost £178